DAMAGE TO COUNTY ROADS IS GREAT

Heavy Rains Reported in All Sections of the County.

Many Culverts Washed Away and Parts of the Roads Are Now Ruined.

IT AMOUNTS TO HUNDREDS.

County Road Supervisor Bert Johnson is busy investigating the damage to county roads caused by the late heavy rains.

Farmers report a heavy rain last night again and several creeks in the county were overflowing their banks this morning. County Judge Lightfoot stated this morning that Supervisor Bert Johnson is very much wrought up over the situation. Dozens of culverts have been washed away and much damage done roads under course of construction and improvement.

Supervisor Johnson called Judge Lightfoot up over the telephone late yesterday and reported very deplorable conditions. He stated that he was unable to tell the total damage but it will amount to many hundred dollars. He is repairing the roads and replacing culverts as fast as possible, but says it will require weeks of hard work to place the roads in condition again.

Farmers say the rain of Tuesday night was the hardest in years and that they had never seen creeks in such condition before. Creeks overflowed their banks and spread over hundred of acres of land, converting farms into lakes.

WAR ROMANCE
St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 2.—The marriage here of a gray-haired couple, J. P. Thornton aged sixty-five years, and Mrs. Mary Tuff, aged sixty, both of Lexington, Ky., culminated a romance which began before the civil war. They were schoolmates and sweethearts as children. Thornton says. He fought throughout the civil war as a member of Morgan's Raiders. Returning from the great conflict, he learned that in his absence his sweetheart had been wooed and won by another. A few years ago her husband died. Then Thornton renewed his suit. The couple made a fruitless attempt to wed last night. They located a justice, but were unable to get the necessary license until today.
